CARNEGIE TO TILLMAN ON MILITARY PROGRAM

Ironmaster Lands North Carolina Senator for Advising Against Haste.

A letter from Andrew Carnegie, advising against the enlargement of the United States Army or Navy and praising Senator Tillman, chairman of the naval affairs committee, because he had advised against a big naval program at this time, was read to the Senate during the Wednesday night's session by Senator Tillman. Mr. Carnegie's letter was as follows:

Termed Wise Advice.

"Permit me to thank you for the wisest advice upon army and navy yet given in or out of Congress. The professional naval or military official can never be trusted to judge wisely upon professional matters. Britain was misled by this class and adopted the dreadnaughts, which rendered most of her navy useless. Germany followed much later, after dreadnaughts had been developed.

"Thus Germany's naval forces soon began to rival Britain's. The British had hundreds of warships practically obsolete, and had to begin building German. Now our country is liable to make the same mistake.

No Need of Haste.

"There is no need of haste. Gen.
Kitchener believes the present war is to be a long one. Our republic today occupies an unrivaled position. The richest of all nations and the most prosperous, with 100,000,000 of educated people, alert and vigorous beyond those of other nations, no enemy in sight and one can scarcely be imagined to build a great navy or increase the army would in my opinion be folly only equalled by one who declined to walk outside without a lightning rod down his back because once there was a man struck by lightning.
The danger of war on our country is not greater, unless our military and naval caste alarms other nations by foolishly enlarging our engines of destruction before we know which or what is to prove the errors of the foolish nations now rapidly exhausting their resources, both in men, money and credit."

DR. C. J. EAMES, CHEMIST, DIES AT THE AGE OF 84

Scientist of New York Who Had Many Important Discoveries to His Credit.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Dr. Charles J. Eames, a noted chemist who had many chemical discoveries to his credit, died here yesterday at the age of eighty-four.

Dr. Eames first advanced the theory that carbolic acid used in surgery would prevent infection. He also discovered an important part of the art of manufacturing celluloid and without his discovery it could not have become commercialized. Another important discovery made by Dr. Eames was a method of forging steel direct from the ore, which was the first process of this kind ever used in this country.
The first successful crematory ever put up in this country was built at Fresh Pond under his supervision and from the plans of Dr. Eames.

Wisconsin reports three cases of triplets last year.

MAN CAPTURED IN MAINE IS PROBABLY FUGITIVE

Said to Have Been Leader in Daring Escape From Federal Prison in 1910.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., March 5.— Frank Gregware, who, it is believed, has been caught at Dover, Me., was one of the leaders in a daring escape from prison. At noon, April 21, 1910, when the convicts in the federal prison here were marching to dinner six of them stepped from the line, seized a locomotive which had just been backed into the prison yard and commanded the engineer, at the point of wooden revolvers, to put on "full speed ahead."

The gates of the prison were swinging shut as the engine sped down the track, but with a crash it went through.
After a run of several miles the convicts were forced to abandon the engine because of a washout. Four of them were recaptured within a short time, but Gregware and another eluded the officers.
